

Learn the Native American Flute

► Expanding Possibilities

Enrich your musical skills on the Native American flute. Explore alternate scales and creative approaches to composition and improvisation.

Thursdays • Jan. 16 - Feb. 6, 2013 • 7:30-9:00pm

Jan 16 ~ Jan 23 ~ Jan 30 ~ Feb 6

Location: Dallas Meditation Center

727 S. Floyd Rd, Richardson, TX 75080 (near 75 Central & Spring Valley)

Instructor: Cornell Kinderknecht

Cornell is an award-nominated World Flutes performing and recording artist as well as a teacher. In addition to his own solo albums, his work can be heard on numerous other artists' recordings across many genres. He has a private studio of flute students in Dallas and is in demand as a performer and presenter at music workshops around the US. With his expertise, he provides practical interactive instruction while his light-hearted approach puts students at ease. Cornell has twice been a Texas Music Awards nominee and he currently serves on the Board of Directors of Earth Rhythms.

Photo by Moni Hodgkins

www.cornellk.com

A five-session intermediate to advanced course to enrich your skills on this beautiful instrument.

- ◆ Expressive interpretation
- ◆ Alternate scales
- ◆ Composition / improvisation approaches
- ◆ Tonal development and musicianship

Open to students who have attended other levels of this series OR to students who have intermediate to advanced experience with the Native American flute.

Course fee: $115 if registered by Jan 3, ($135 after January 3)

 A pentatonic Native American flute is required for this course. If you need one, a high quality flute will be provided upon request for an additional $50.*

Advance registration for this class is requested.

Please register online by January 12 at:

www.cornellk.com

