

Learn the Native American Flute

► Developing Musical Style

Expand your playing skills on Native American flute and find your own musical style. Use extended technique and breath to develop a rich sound.

Tuesdays • Feb 10 - Mar 3, 2015
7:30-9:30pm

Location: Dallas Meditation Center

727 S. Floyd Rd, Richardson, TX 75080 (near 75 Central & Spring Valley)

Instructor: Cornell Kinderknecht

Cornell is an award-winning World Flutes performing and recording artist as well as a teacher. In addition to his own solo albums, his work can be heard on numerous other artists' recordings across many genres. He has a private studio of flute students in Dallas and is in demand as a performer and presenter at music workshops around the US.

Photo by Noni Hodgkins

With his expertise, he provides practical interactive instruction while his light-hearted approach puts students at ease. Cornell is an Indian Summer Music Awards winner and has twice been a Texas Music Awards nominee. He currently serves on the Board of Directors of Earth Rhythms.

www.cornellk.com

A four-session intermediate course to build skills on this beautiful, haunting, meditative, exciting musical instrument.

- ◆ Tablature and rhythms
- ◆ Phrasing and tonal development
- ◆ Improvisation and composition
- ◆ Playing with ease and confidence

Open to students who have attended the earlier levels (1 & 2) of this series OR to others who have experience with the Native American flute (at ease with fingerings, scales, and use of breath)

Course fee: $120 (register by Jan 27 / $140 after Jan 27)

 A pentatonic Native American flute in A-minor is required for this course. If you need one, a high quality flute will be provided upon request for an additional $60.*

Advance registration for this class is requested.
Please register online by February 7 at:

www.cornellk.com