

Finding the Voice Within

Learn the Native American Flute

Find the music and the joy within yourself through the Native American flute. Go from the basics to creating your own music in this interactive class.

Thursdays 7:30 – 9:00pm March 22 – April 19, 2018
Mar 22 ~ Mar 29 ~ Apr 5 ~ Apr 19 (no class on April 12)

Location: Dallas Meditation Center

810 W. Arapaho Rd., Suite 98 ~ Richardson, TX 75080

Instructor: Cornell Kinderknecht

Cornell is an award-winning World Flutes performing and recording artist as well as a teacher. In addition to his own solo albums, his work can be heard on numerous other artists' recordings across many genres. He has a private studio of flute students in Dallas and is in demand as a performer and presenter at music workshops throughout the US. With his expertise, he provides practical interactive instruction while his light-hearted approach puts students at ease. Cornell is an Indian Summer Music Awards winner, a Native American Music Awards finalist, an early round Grammy nominee, and twice a Texas Music Awards nominee.

Photo by Nori Hodgkins

www.cornellk.com

In this four-session course we will explore aspects of this beautiful, haunting, meditative, exciting instrument and its music, including:

- ◆ Basic scale patterns and techniques
- ◆ Special effects and extended skills
- ◆ Creating your own music
- ◆ History and culture of the Native flute

Previous musical experience is NOT required.

A high-quality Native American flute will be available for each student *

Course fee: $125 (if registered by March 5 / $145 after)

 Additional material cost of $70 for a Native American flute for those that need one (if you have an A-minor pentatonic Native American flute, you may use that)*

Advance registration for this class is requested.
Please register online by March 15, 2018 at:

www.cornellk.com